Death of Mr. Wm. H. Green.

Our community was deeply pained to hear of the death of Mr. Wm. H. Green, which occurred at his residence in District No. 3, on Monday evening last, at 8 o'clock. Though his friends and intimate acquaintances had known for some years past that the tide of life was ebbing from his heart by slow degrees, driven there by the dread of that disease, consumption, still at times hope would whisper to him and them in her agony that he would yet be victorious, his indomitable will and sanguine temperament would yet enable him to be victorious for many years to come over the grim messenger. But death is sooner or later always victor, and he has only too soon met the inevitable fate of us all.

No man in our county was, perhaps, more generally and favorably known, certainly none more sincerely liked and universally esteemed by those who enjoyed his acquaintance, than William H. Green. Modest, quiet, unostentatious, manly, brave, noble, generous, true and open-hearted, there was perhaps no admirable trait that was not his, and he was a perfect gentleman and truly a noble man. He did not possess, and there is no one who knew him, but over whose heart the deep shadows of regret will fall, to learn that one so worthy of life should so soon pass to "silence and pathetic dust."

He was only 41 years of age and the whole of his short, quiet life, save the period of four years he spent in the late war, was spent on his farm where he was born and lived the peaceful, happy life of a prosperous, educated farmer. He enlisted in the army, on May 14, 1861, entering as a private soldier in Company A. of the 14th Tennessee Regiment, with which regiment he served during the war in the army of Northern Virginia, taking active participation in all its battles and campaigns and is spoken of by his comrades as one of the bravest, most gallant and highly respected soldiers that ever fought in behalf of his principles and his native land. Although often offered promotion for gallant and meritorious conduct on the field of battle, he always declined, saying he came into the struggle as a private soldier and preferred to stay with his regiment and share its fate. Shortly, however, before the battle of Gettysburg, he was promoted to accept the office of Sergeant and was detailed as a courier on Gen. Heintz's staff and served in this position until the end of the war, surrendering at Appomattox in July 1864, receiving at the time a certificate from his admiring commander, of duty honorably and faithfully performed, which he brought home with him and always treasured as a sacred souvenir. "Those times that tried men's souls."

Returning from the war, he forgot the passions and bitterness of those times and settled on his fine plantation. He married some years after, Miss Munroe, an accomplished lady of central Kentucky, who, together with several small children, remains to mourn his untimely loss.

We feel that we cannot say too much of William H. Green, for no man ever possessed finer traits of character. In natural disposition he was kind, generous and high-minded, he possessed a refined and delicate sense of honor, justice and right, one of those men whose character was devoid of show, but built on a solid foundation. During the last years of his life pain and uncertainty were his constant companions, and he never lost his cheerful disposition. The rude hand of disease seemed the better to show forth the treasures of his heart, and though his portion was nothing but "fear and pain, and a pale consumptive care," he always strove not to burden others with his sufferings and sorrows, schooling himself the while to hope, cheerfulness and fortitude, while his body pined in pain. He had many warm friendships, and his love for his family was beautiful in its purity and simplicity.

All in all, he was a good man and his death is a sad loss to the community in which he lived. His funeral was held at his late residence on Wednesday morning, the Rev. W. W. Lupton of this city and Rev. W. W. Brinkley of the neighborhood, officiating. His remains were brought to this city and interred at Greenwood cemetery, the Knights of Honor, of which organization he was an honored member, accompanying his remains to their last resting place.

At St. Louis, last Sunday morning shortly before the Planters' House, the largest, oldest and most popular hotel in the city caught fire, and came near resulting in another such terrible affair as the burning of the old Southern Hotel in that city several years ago. The fire originated in the cook room but after several hours hard work by the fire department was subdued. Three persons, employees of the house, were smothered to death by smoke.

We call your particular attention to the advertisement of M. A. Stratton, the boot and shoe man, in which he offers special bargains to those wanting boots, shoes, hats, &c., at greatly reduced prices. He is now selling a large lot of remnants, which he has placed upon his bargain counter at startlingly low prices. He is selling these goods at such astonishingly low figures in order to clear up his odd lots, and it will certainly pay you to call and examine them, as they are being sold at one-half the regular price. See his advertisement on 1st page.

We call the attention of our readers and especially that of the planters and tobacco dealers of the Clarksville District to the statement of the George Warehouse Association, of this city, at the beginning of business on January 1st, 1883. A perusal of this statement will show this enterprising organization to be in a solid and flourishing condition. It may be read elsewhere in this issue.

Death of Col. M. G. Gholson.

Col. Milton G. Gholson died at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. John S. Nebbett, in this city, on Thursday morning last at 8 o'clock. The deceased was born in Cumberland county, Ky., moved to Christian county, Ky., while a boy and while still a young man moved to this, Montgomery county, Tenn., where the greater part of his life has been spent. He was in the 69th year of his age.

He went into the late war as Lieutenant-Colonel of the 14th Tennessee regiment, entering it at its organization in 1861, and went with it to Virginia where he served one year, afterwards resigning his commission, being over age and in ill health. Upon his return to Tennessee, he was commissioned Brigadier-General of Militia by Governor Harris and assisted in organizing the 91st and 92d Tennessee regiments. He was regarded as an accomplished and gallant officer.

Col. Gholson was well known by all of our citizens and was much esteemed for many admirable traits of character which he possessed. He was an educated, polished, refined gentleman. Like all men positive in character, he was greatly attached to and loved his friends and was firm, open and frank with his enemies. He was a widower at the time of his death, but had been twice married, his first wife being a Miss Rogers and his second a Miss Vance, both of this county, and both of whom have preceded him to the grave some years. He raised a large family of children, only three of whom survive him, two daughters and one son.

He had been in declining health for some two years past, suffering with a complication of diseases, but his relatives and friends had strong hopes of his ultimate recovery until a few days ago, when he grew rapidly worse. His remains were interred on yesterday at 12 o'clock at the family burial ground, near his former residence on the Southside. The burial services were conducted at the grave. Many friends and relatives in this city and county deeply regret his death.

Mrs. Lucy A. Atkins, wife of Mr. Isaac H. Atkins, died at her home on Eighth street, on Wednesday night, the 17th inst., at 9 o'clock, after a protracted illness of consumption. She had been a sufferer from this fatal disease for a number of years, much of the time confined to her room. She was a devoted communicant of the Methodist church and bore her sufferings with more Christian fortitude. She leaves a family of five children to feel the great loss of a mother's tender care and affection. Her funeral services were held at the Methodist church on yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. Services by the Revs. J. D. Barbee and J. P. McFerrin. Interment at Greenwood Cemetery.

Furnishing Society's Entertainment.

The entertainments by the Furnishing Society of the Methodist church, at Elder's Opera-house on Thursday and Friday evenings, were well patronized by our citizens, and we are pleased to say were a success. The participants comprised some of our very best vocal and instrumental musical talent, and many selections were executed and pleasingly rendered. A detailed notice is impossible at this writing, but it is sufficient praise to say the audiences were well pleased.

The quartette, "Come Where the Lillies Bloom," by Misses Wilson and Messrs. Forbes and Wilson; Miss Jennie Bailey's vocal solo; the duet, "Tis Only a Pansy Blossom," by Miss Visser and Mr. W. A. Forbes; and the instrumental quartette, by Mrs. Moore, Miss Visser, Prof. Emory and Mr. Rosen-phant were all excellently rendered and deserve special mention.

The after piece, "The Loan of a Lover," was even better acted than on its former presentation here some months ago. Miss Minnie Thomas, in the leading lady's part, making another decided hit and adding fresh laurels to her well-earned reputation won before. She has no equal as an amateur actress among us, and is gifted with unquestioned dramatic talent. Other parts in the play were well rendered, but we have not the time for special mention.

SEE Messrs. Coulter Bros.' new advertisement. They keep the freshest and choicest of dry goods, and you cannot do better than to look through their splendid stock.

EX-Senator Dorsey has resigned the office of Secretary to the Republican National Committee, but he is still a member of the Star-route gang.

LOOSE tobacco has been coming in with a rush this week and we learn that our stemmers are crowded. Yet there is always room for more.

Mrs. ALBIZ, the mother of Mrs. Sam'l. REXINGER, of this city, died at her home in St. Louis, Mo., on Thursday last week, in the seventieth year of her age.

THE usual services will be held at the Episcopal church to-morrow, the Rev. P. A. Fitts having returned to the city.
